

Andrea Rosado

Mind & Melody

From a very young age, I've been deeply passionate about understanding the human mind and expressing myself through music and art. I pursued a degree in Psychology with a minor in Art at Florida International University, which allowed me to explore the intersection of creativity and mental processes. My lifelong love for music and creating art has always been more than just a hobby—it's been a way for me to connect, express, and bring joy to others.

That passion led me to my current role as the Community and Partnerships Manager at Mind&Melody, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to bringing interactive music sessions to individuals with neurological conditions. It's incredibly meaningful to work for an organization that reflects both my academic background and my personal values. I feel proud to be part of a mission that uses music as a tool for healing and connection—especially for those facing cognitive challenges. In my role, I get to build relationships, create community impact, and help grow a program that brings light into people's lives through empathy and creativity.

It's rare to find a position that so seamlessly blends your interests, education, and heart—but I've found that at Mind&Melody. Being recognized in this Spotlight Moment is a reminder of how fulfilling it is to do work that matters, both to me personally and to the communities we serve.